Japanese Landing Forces In Luzon Are "Wiped Out" By U.S.

Dutch Submarines Sink 4,000 Japs In 4 Transports

Batavia, Java, N. E., Dec. 13 (AP)—About 4,000 Japanese soldiers lost their lives when Netherlands submarines sank four Japanese troop transports off southern Batavia, near the Malayan frontier, the Batavia radio announced tonight.

Singapore, Dec. 13 (AP)—Netherlands submarines sank four fully loaded Japanese troopships off Patani in southern Thailand, not far from the Malayan frontier, a communique issued here today said.

The transports, fully loaded, were steaming in a southerly direction when intercepted, the announcement said.

"The general situation in northern Malaya has been unaltered during the last 12 hours," the bulletin added.

STRUCK BY CAR; NEW JAIL PLANS PEDESTRIAN IS SUSPENDED FOR BADLY INJURED DEFENSE EFFORT

Selbert L. Leberknight, 50, Gettysburg R. 5, employee of Shears' bakery on Buford avenue, is in a "critical" condition today in the Warner hospital from injuries he received at 5:25 o'clock Friday evening when he was struck by a light delivery truck operated by George M. Zerling, 42 Howard street, local hardware merchant.

Borough Officer Lloyd E. Wisler investigated the accident and said that Mr. Zerling was on route to his home when the mishap occurred. He had just turned off Buford avenue onto Seminary avenue when the front of his truck hit Leberknight as the pedestrian walked across Seminary avenue toward the Glenn Bream garage. Leberknight had just parked his car nearby.

Mr. Zerling told the policeman that he did not see the man until it was too late to avoid striking him.

Thrown to Side

It is believed the front bumper of the Zerling truck struck and broke the victim's left leg while his shoulder and left side were injured when they hit the radiator grille. The force of the impact threw Leberknight to the side and out of the path of the truck. The skull fracture may have been caused when he fell to the street, Officer Wisler said.

The policeman said that indications at the scene of the accident were that the Zerling truck was not traveling fast when the accident occurred. The only damage to the truck was to the grille and radiator.

REDS ATTACK

Berlin, Dec. 13 (Official broadcast received by AP)—Soviet troops supported by tanks and shielded by a fog launched strong attacks against Germans on the eastern front yesterday.

The latest war developments in an at-a-glance fashion are: (1) SINGAPORE, where men rescued from the British ships Prince of Wales and Repulse were landed, and near the island of Penang (A) which the Japanese bombed; (2) the coast near HONGKONG, where bomb hits on British gunboats were claimed by Japanese; (3) the PHILIPPINES, where United States forces appeared to have virtually smashed all efforts of the Japanese to land; (4) the approximate location of the island of BOBIA, where Australian bombers raided a Japanese air base; (5) GUAM, where the Japanese claimed they occupied Agaña, the island's capital; (6) WAKE, where the Navy said in Washington four separate attacks on the island had been repulsed in the last 48 hours and Japanese ships were sunk.

Bulgaria Declares War On U.S., Britain

London, Dec. 13 (AP)—Bulgaria has declared war on the United States and Britain as an ally of the Axis powers, a Berlin broadcast said today.

The broadcast, quoting a dispatch relayed from Budapest by the German News agency DNB, said Premier Bogdan Philov had announced the government's decision to Parliament at noon.

(Britain severed diplomatic relations with Bulgaria March 5 because of her action in allowing German troops to take up positions on Bulgarian soil threatening Greece. (Bulgaria went down to defeat with Germany in the World war, which resulted in a shrinkage of her national territory and led to the exile of Czar Ferdinand, father of the present ruler, King Boris.)

A British spokesman said that no direct word had been received here of a Bulgarian declaration of war. Any confirmation, he said, would have to come through the United States minister in Sofia.

(The U. S. minister to Bulgaria is George H. Earle, Jr., former Governor of Pennsylvania.)

Russians Score Smashing Gains In Rout Of Foe

[By the Associated Press]

A disastrous end to Adolf Hitler's invasion of Russia was freely predicted by London military quarters today as Moscow proclaimed the utter defeat of a 750,000 strong German army and signs multiplied that Hitler might be planning a new campaign through Bulgaria into Turkey and the middle east.

On the Russian front, a Soviet communique declared 85,000 Germans had been killed, 23 out of 51 Nazi divisions—approximately 345,000 out of 765,000 troops—had been smashed, routed, surrounded or forced to retreat in the Moscow zone since November 16.

The Moscow radio said General Zhukov's Red Army had recaptured another 30 villages yesterday in pursuit of the Germans retreating from the Velyets sector, 200 miles south of Moscow.

On the Leningrad front Soviet dispatches said the Germans had lost 6,000 killed in a month's futile offensive.

An official German broadcast acknowledged Russian troops supported by tanks and shielded by fog launched strong attacks along the winter-bound front and the broadcast complained the Russians were attacking continuously "without regard to losses."

Hitler's most urgent need was in the middle east theatre where latest dispatches from north Africa reported British mobile columns sweeping 50 miles or more beyond Tobruk were inflicting havoc among scattered German-Italian forces attempting to escape toward Derna or Benghazi.

Sentry Shoots Two Ignoring Command

Chicago, Dec. 13 (AP)—A sentry at the Chicago naval armory shot and wounded two men early today when he said they ignored his commands to halt and identify themselves.

One of the men was wounded in the mouth and the other in the left arm. They were taken to the Bridewell hospital.

The men had been walking near a fence at the north end of the armory grounds apparently headed toward Lake Michigan. The sentry challenged them twice and opened fire when he said they started to run.

Naval authorities started an official inquiry.

WAVES OF BOMBERS

Manila, Dec. 13 (3:10 p. m. local time, 2:10 a. m. EST.) (AP)—Waves of Japanese planes attacked military objectives in the Manila area today and explosions from Nichols field indicated they had unloaded just about everything they carried on that vital air port.

The raiders met strong resistance from fighter planes and anti-aircraft guns.

SINK ITALIAN CRUISER

London, Dec. 13 (AP)—The admiralty announced today that British destroyers sank an Italian cruiser this morning—the second Italian cruiser accounted for by British naval forces in two days.

An Italian motor torpedo boat also was sunk in the same action in the central Mediterranean the communique said.

Another Italian cruiser and torpedo boat were damaged heavily in the pre-dawn attack it was said.

BOMB CEBU

Washington, Dec. 13 (AP)—The War department reported today Japanese aircraft bombed Cebu in the Philippines south of the island of Luzon where the island defenses are concentrated.

Other aircraft bombed Clark field north of Manila, the department said in the day's first communique on the fighting in the Philippines.

Meanwhile no further reports of enemy activity in Hawaii have been received, it said.

DISLODGE GERMANS

Moscow, Dec. 13 (AP)—Tass reported on the Moscow radio today that Soviet cavalry advanced 18 miles and dislodged the Germans from about 30 populated points on the Moscow front yesterday.

By R. P. CRONIN, JR.

Manila, Dec. 13 (5 p. m., 4 a. m., EST) — (AP) — Japanese landing forces which won a foothold at Lingayen on the west coast of Luzon 100 miles from Manila were declared officially today to have been wiped out.

A communique from the headquarters of Lieut. Gen. Douglas MacArthur indicated that the Japanese had made no gains at other landing bridgeheads and that no new landings had been reported.

"The situation on the ground has not changed," the War department bulletin asserted.

Conclude Mopping-Up

It added that "mopping up in the Lingayen area has been concluded."

Thus the second Japanese attempt to gain a Luzon foothold there within striking distance of the concentration of military works around Manila apparently was smashed in a stubborn defense fight.

The Japanese first were reported landing at Lingayen last Wednesday. Within 24 hours the situation there was declared "under control," but it was disclosed yesterday that the Japanese were attempting once more to develop an attack there.

Sporadic Fighting

General MacArthur reported earlier that fighting at other places where the Japanese had stabbed at the coastal defenses had become sporadic. He declared there had been no confirmation of recurrent reports that the Japanese had landed parachute troops.

The Japanese struck anew during the day at United States Air bases around Manila and elsewhere in the Philippines, but a communique said that although reports so far were meagre "it is believed our losses were slight."

Some Japanese planes—their number undetermined—were reported shot down. A harbor defense anti-aircraft battery was credited with bringing down one of the attackers.

Bomb Nichols Field

In possibly their heaviest attack of the day the Japanese bombed military objectives in the Manila area—particularly Nichols Field.

The raiders first appeared just after noon and the attack developed into apparently the heaviest thrust of the day at the Philippines. Bomb attacks on other points in the Philippines earlier had been reported.

The Manila attack centered around Nichols Field, although it was presumed other places in the area were bombed.

An Associated Press staff member, Clark Lee, watched the raid from Manila's tallest building and saw American or Philippine fighters pitch into the formation of Japanese bombers.

Blast Top and Bottom

The fighter craft attacked from above the planes and then flew up from below to get a second crack at them. However, the Japanese still held their formations.

One flight of enemy planes passed directly over the Associated Press lookout post at an altitude of about 10,000 feet, bringing a shower of shrapnel from anti-aircraft guns.

The noise of the bombings ceased about 1 p. m. (12 midnight Friday E. S. T.).

SNOW PLOWS START WORK

The state highway department maintenance office here put cinder crews and snow plow operators to work this morning to clear streets and highways of snow for the first time this season.

J. William Kendlehart Jr., superintendent, said that cinder crews began their work about 4 a. m. and continued throughout the morning to spread cinders on hills, curves, intersections and approaches to railroad crossings.

First snow plows went out about 7 o'clock and by 9 a. m. there were five graders and nine trucks equipped with plows at work on county highways with the earlier precipitation of a mixture of snow and sleet changing to rain.

Plans for the construction of a new $45,000 jail for Adams county have been suspended for the present, Adams county commissioners told The Gettysburg Times today.

That action has been decided upon by the commissioners as a gesture of their desire "to cooperate to the fullest extent with the national defense effort," it was explained. Large quantities of steel and other metals would be required for the concrete and steel structure that now can go into vital defense work, the commissioners pointed out.

Specifications for the new building are nearly completed and probably will be submitted to the commissioners next Wednesday by John Alfred Hamme, York architect.

Only last week Mr. Hamme told the commissioners he believed priority ratings for the necessary steel and other metals required for the new jail could be secured but since the entrance of the United States into war with the Axis powers, commissioners have decided to drop all efforts for special priorities for the proposed building.

KID M'COY AND ZIVIC BATTLE 10-ROUND DRAW

BY GAYLE TALBOT

New York, Dec. 13 (AP)—The headlong career of young Kid Mc- Coy toward the welterweight title ran into a temporary detour last night when the baby-faced battler from Detroit was held to a draw by Fritz Zivic.

At the end of 10 furious rounds in Madison Square Garden, two of- ficials called it even. The third voted for McCoy but, under New York's boxing system, the majority ruled. McCoy was a downcast boxer as he left the ring. He thought he had won, and so did most of the crowd. This observer gave McCoy six rounds to four for the Pitts- burgh fighter.

It was a rip-tearing contest all the way. They started tossing punches right after the opening bell, and had to be separated when it was over. Zivic's left eye was closed through the last three rounds, and McCoy's left orb was in mourning at the finish.

Offered Return Go

The decision left promoter Mike Jacobs in something of a quandary, as he had planned to pit McCoy against Ray Robinson, the negro sensation, with the winner to meet Red Cochrane, the welterweight champion. Now the whole thing is a mess, as both Robinson and Cochrane have trimmed Zivic.

There wasn't a knockdown in last night's bout, nor a serious hurt, both boys being flashy punchers rather than knocker-outers. The most damaging blows were occasional rights slipped over by McCoy with the speed of a light. A dozen of them landed on Zivic's jaw and rocked him to his heels each time, but Fritzle only shook his head and waded back for more.

When it was over, Jacobs offered them a return go on January 2, but they asked him to wait and see if their eyes healed.

Low Income Rates

He asserted it is necessary to pay more than ordinary attention to overhead and general expenses and referred to the low rates of income banks are compelled to take on sound investments. He pointed to the government and life insurance company competition with the banking business.

Discussing service charges, he declared that for a bank to carry checking accounts at a loss is the equivalent of paying a high rate of interest on money. Fair and equitable service charges are contemplated only to offset the losses from unprofitable accounts and not to make a profit for the bank, he stated.

He asserted it is necessary to pay more than ordinary attention to overhead and general expenses and referred to the low rates of income banks are compelled to take on sound investments. He pointed to the government and life insurance company competition with the banking business.

Discussing service charges, he declared that for a bank to carry checking accounts at a loss is the equivalent of paying a high rate of interest on money. Fair and equitable service charges are contemplated only to offset the losses from unprofitable accounts and not to make a profit for the bank, he stated.

The invocation was given by the Rev. L. K. Young, of Oberlin, Pa., and after introductory remarks by the toastmaster the Bel Canto quartet from Harrisburg presented a number of selections. The group included Mae Shoup Cox, soprano; Helen M. Dale, contralto; Harry M. Etter, bass, and Robert H. Bagwell, bass. The accompanist was Dewitt Waters.

KID M'COY AND ZIVIC BATTLE 10-ROUND DRAW

BY GAYLE TALBOT

New York, Dec. 13 (AP)—The headlong career of young Kid McCoy toward the welterweight title ran into a temporary detour last night when the baby-faced brawler from Detroit was held to a draw by Fritz Zivic.

At the end of 10 furious rounds in Madison Square Garden, two officials called it even. The third voted for McCoy but, under New York's boxing system, the majority ruled. McCoy was a downcast boxer as he left the ring. He thought he had won, and so did most of the crowd. This observer gave McCoy six rounds to four for the Pittsburgh fighter.

It was a rip-tearing contest all the way. They started tossing punches right after the opening bell, and had to be separated when it was over. Zivic's left eye was closed through the last three rounds, and McCoy's left orb was in mourning at the finish.

Offered Return Go

The decision left promoter Mike Jacobs in something of a quandary, as he had planned to pit McCoy against Ray Robinson, the negro sensation, with the winner to meet Red Cochrane, the welterweight champion. Now the whole thing is a mess, as both Robinson and Cochrane have trimmed Zivic.

There wasn't a knockdown in last night's bout, nor a serious hurt, both boys being flashy punchers rather than knocker-outers. The most damaging blows were occasional rights slipped over by McCoy with the speed of a light. A dozen of them landed on Zivic's jaw and rocked him to his heels each time, but Fritz only shook his head and waded back for more.

When it was over, Jacobs offered them a return go on January 2, but they asked him to wait and see if their eyes healed.

The British and Chinese first crossed the Thailand frontier toward Chiangrai, about 30 miles from the border, the dispatch said.

(The road through Chiangrai is one of the most feasible routes for an advance upon the Burma road.)

Maroons Win Opening Contest Easily; Bullets Play DePauw Here Tonight

Maryland State School For Deaf Is Easy Victim Of High Cagers, 36 to 8

Showing enough form against comparatively weak opposition to indicate they will again be strong contenders for the Southern Pennsylvania league title this season, the Gettysburg high cagers opened their season here Friday night by swamping the Maryland State School for Deaf, 36-8. A large crowd attended.

There was never any doubt as to the outcome after the first few minutes of play. Davey Plank, guard, scored a short shot 15 seconds after the game started and quickly added another and from then on the Forney-men had things their own way.

Uses Whole Squad
Coach Forney used his entire varsity squad of 14 players and for practically the entire second quarter used an outfit composed entirely of juniors.

The entire starting lineup scored from the field at least once in the first half and piled up a 17-4 margin at half time. The visitors tallied on goals by Harris and Myers.

Sachs and Boehner sparked the scoring in the second half which found the visitors completely outclassed. Although the Maroons showed great promise it was clearly evident they have not yet reached their top form. The starting lineup of Fair, Bream, Carter, Sachs and Plank displayed a fine defense which was carried out by the reserves. However, on the offense the team missed many comparatively easy shots which should be cleared up as the season progresses.

Fairfield Wins
Fairfield high walloped the Maroon reserves handily in the preliminary game, 32-12.

W. Nary, Fairfield forward, took the scoring honors by tossing nine goals through the hoop.

Texas All America May Join Air Corps

Austin, Tex., Dec. 13 (AP)—A business career and professional football can wait—Malcolm Kutner, first university of Texas football player to make the Associated Press All-America team, would like to help Uncle Sam right now.

The smiling Kutner, who admitted "it was something I've dreamed about since I was a kid"—this landing at end on the All-America—said he'd like to join either the Navy or the Army Air corps although he's only 20.

"Yes, I've got plans for the future. But I'm ready to serve Uncle Sam if he can use me."

SPORTS ROUNDUP

BY HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
(Wide World Sports Columnist)

New York, Dec. 13 (Wide World)—If the Giants keep on making—and announcing—their trades at odd hours, they may lose the sports writers' good will that they earned by naming Mel Ott manager. The Hank Leiber trade didn't come off until 2 a. m. and the deal for Johnny Mize was announced after a lot of the New York writers had left for home. Branch Rickey had tipped off the St. Louis scribes to stick around because something was cooking. The Gothamites weren't exactly pleased, either, to learn that they were beaten on Ott's appointment because Charley Stoneham had phoned the news to a New York restaurateur while they were busy interviewing Master Melvin and the news was all over town before their stories hit the wires.

Maryland State School For Deaf Is Easy Victim Of High Cagers, 36 to 8

Showing enough form against comparatively weak opposition to indicate they will again be strong contenders for the Southern Pennsylvania league title this season, the Gettysburg high cagers opened their season here Friday night by swamping the Maryland State School for Deaf, 36-8. A large crowd attended.

There was never any doubt as to the outcome after the first few minutes of play. Davey Plank, guard, scored a short shot 15 seconds after the game started and quickly added another and from then on the Forney-men had things their own way.

Uses Whole Squad
Coach Forney used his entire varsity squad of 14 players and for practically the entire second quarter used an outfit composed entirely of juniors.

The entire starting lineup scored from the field at least once in the first half and piled up a 17-4 margin at half time. The visitors tallied on goals by Harris and Myers.

Sachs and Boehner sparked the scoring in the second half which found the visitors completely outclassed. Although the Maroons showed great promise it was clearly evident they have not yet reached their top form. The starting lineup of Fair, Bream, Carter, Sachs and Plank displayed a fine defense which was carried out by the reserves. However, on the offense the team missed many comparatively easy shots which should be cleared up as the season progresses.

Fairfield Wins
Fairfield high walloped the Maroon reserves handily in the preliminary game, 32-12.

W. Nary, Fairfield forward, took the scoring honors by tossing nine goals through the hoop.

Texas All America May Join Air Corps

Austin, Tex., Dec. 13 (AP)—A business career and professional football can wait—Malcolm Kutner, first university of Texas football player to make the Associated Press All-America team, would like to help Uncle Sam right now.

The smiling Kutner, who admitted "it was something I've dreamed about since I was a kid"—this landing at end on the All-America—said he'd like to join either the Navy or the Army Air corps although he's only 20.

"Yes, I've got plans for the future. But I'm ready to serve Uncle Sam if he can use me."

SPORTS ROUNDUP

BY HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
 (Wide World Sports Columnist)

New York, Dec. 13 (Wide World)—If the Giants keep on making—and announcing—their trades at odd hours, they may lose the sports writers' good will that they earned by naming Mel Ott manager.

The Hank Leibert trade didn't come off until 2 a. m. and the deal for Johnny Mize was announced after a lot of the New York writers had left for home. Branch Rickey had tipped off the St. Louis scribes to stick around because something was cooking. The Gothamites weren't exactly pleased, either, to learn that they were beaten on Ott's appointment because Charley Stoneham had phoned the news to a New York restaurateur while they were busy interviewing Master Melvin and the news was all over town before their stories hit the wires.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR
 Glenn H. Peterson, Bismarck (N. D.) Capital: "Major Fullerton league magnates intending to buy baseball players from the St. Louis Cardinals and Branch Rickey out to stipulate in the contract one additional clause: 'How many years, or months, is the player guaranteed for?'"

ONE-MINUTE SPORTS PAGE
 The Yankees' offer to Brooklyn for Dolph Camilli was $35,000 cash and players worth $25,000 more. Larry MacPhail provided the laugh of the week when he explained he was trying to get rid of Camilli because Dolph talked too much. Fred Browning, Lew Jenkins' manager, and coach trainer Bud Burmeister have leased the stallion Nedavir from A. G. Vanderbilt for their Texas breeding ventures. Is Lester Patrick weakening on his rookie goalie, Jim Henry? The Rangers' boss won't admit it, but the story in Detroit is that he tried to buy hockey's biggest nemesis, Joe Turner, from the Red Wings' Indianapolis farm and Jack Adams turned him down. Oregon's touring basketball team will collect $5,500 in guarantees besides a percentage of the gate at tonight's Madison Square Garden doubleheader. Dewey Fragetta moans that he has had to cancel $3,000 worth of bouts for his fighters in Venezuela and two Honolulu bouts for Lou Transparenti because of war.

SOB STORY
 H. B. McElroy, assistant publicity director at Texas A. and M., says: "Three years ago I planned a Christmas trip to Mexico City. Two years ago, and again last year, I planned the same trip. About the time I get my plans completed, the Aggies get invited to a bowl game and I have to stay on the job." It's rumored that McElroy already has his order in for next fall's travel folders.

IT'S ABOUT TIME DEPT.
 Raymond C. Knox, Columbia's 65-year-old chaplain who retires next June, is the university's most enthusiastic oarsman. He sculls five or six miles a day, winter and summer, and last June rowed all the way to Poughkeepsie and saw the Lions' crew lose. This week, when Columbia handed out letters to its footballers, Chaplain Knox was awarded his varsity "C."

LINCOLN FIVE TAKES OPENER

Coach Don Ullrich's Lincoln school quintet opened its season successfully here Friday afternoon by handily defeating Fairfield high junior varsity a 19-8 reverse.

After a slow first period the victors took an 8-2 margin at half time and succeeding in holding the advantage throughout the remainder of the tilt.

Timbers grabbed the scoring honors for the Lincoln passers by accounting for nine points. Stine

With the "Theatre of War" expanding into the broad Pacific and involving the United States in the world conflict The Gettysburg Times today publishes the largest and most complete map of the Pacific war zone yet made. The map, a product of the Associated Press, shows the strategic points of possessions of the warring nations, the objectives which are being attacked by the Japanese and the inter-related positions of the many islands in that broad expanse of water. By preserving this map readers of The Gettysburg Times will be able to follow the rapidly engrossing issues, the swift tempo of land, sea and air forces as the war increases in momentum and disaster. 14 ALIEN SPIES ARE CONVICTED OF CONSPIRACY

New York, Dec. 13 (AP)—The conviction of 14 tight-lipped defendants accused of supplying military information to Germany today capped the government's drive against one of the most fantastically-operated spy rings in recent history.

Against a backdrop of the day-old war between the two countries, the 14-week-long trial ended early today with a comparatively speedy verdict. A jury of nine men and three women deliberated only eight hours before finding the 14 guilty on both counts of an indictment charging conspiracy to avoid registering as German government agents and conspiracy to deliver to the Nazi government vital American defense secrets.

Severe Penalty

The verdict carried a maximum sentence of 30 years. Federal Judge Mortimer W. Byers said he would set a date for sentencing Monday.

George Gordon Battle, one of the defense attorneys, said he expected to appeal and several other lawyers indicated that if Battle had the 2-150,000-word record printed, they also would appeal.

Judge Byers said in his 2½-hour charge to the jury that it was "unfortunate" that war started during the trial, declaring it was "probably no exaggeration" to say the defendants had "manifested deep sympathy for Germany."

"Bear in mind, however," he cautioned the jury, "that men are not sent to jail for their opinions in this country. A man is entitled to believe that the German race is a superior race, and that the world was created in order that the German race might dominate it. So long as he does nothing to carry those views into effect to the detriment of the United States there is no attempt on our part to discipline him merely for what he thinks."

Unsettled Spy Plot

The trial disclosed that the government had scored what its agents believed an unparalleled triumph in counter-espionage.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation virtually fathered the spy ring, said to have 20 unapprehended members now in foreign countries, by handling all its coded short-wave messages between here and gestapo

'Everything Seems To Come In Threes'

President Roosevelt, who signed a declaration of war against Japan only three days before, spread two more war declarations on his desk in the White House and signed them, one against Germany, and one against Italy. "Everything seems to come in threes," he commented. With lips drawn back against clenched teeth (left), he signed the declaration against Germany. Before signing the declaration against Italy he checked the time with Sen. Tom Connally (right), standing by with his watch in hand. Again the pen scratched, and the United States was officially at war with Italy.

Summarizing The Po

THE 64,000,000 square miles of the Pacific Ocean now constitute the biggest war front in the world conflict.

The largest expanses of open water in the world lie in the Pacific. Tiny dots of coral reef and sand assure strategic import out of all proportion to size and ocean vastness where solid ground is at a premium.

This is true because even the mightiest navy is dependent on shore establishments for re-fueling, supplies and refitting. Naval action in the Japanese-American war will be largely governed by the fortified stepping stones across the Pacific, the bases controlled by the opposing powers.

Every admiral knows that a capital ship sunk cannot be replaced for three or four years. A capital ship damaged in action, which makes haven at its base, can be ready for sea duty again in three or four months.

This impels fleet commanders to maneuver for decisive action as close as possible to home bases.

The Japanese have no bases in the eastern Pacific. The U.S. has its major bases on the continental coast plus Hawaii and the new Alaskan bases. It is unlikely the Japanese fleet commander would accept a full fleet action 3,000 miles off base and close to American bases.

The Japanese surprise attack on Pearl Harbor was in no sense a fleet action, but a daring thrust by carriers and light craft in a hit-and-run raid.

Japan's major bases are in the western Pacific. They give her naval dominance in the Sea of Japan, the Yellow Sea and the north

'Everything Seems To Come In Threes'

President Roosevelt, who signed a declaration of war against Japan only three days before, spread two more war declarations on his desk in the White House and signed them, one against Germany, and one against Italy. "Everything seems to come in threes," he commented. With lips drawn back against clinched teeth (left), he signed the declaration against Germany. Before signing the declaration against Italy he checked the time with Sen. Tom Connally (right), standing by with his watch in hand. Again the pen scratched, and the United States was officially at war with Italy.

Summarizing The Pa

THE 64,000,000 square miles of the Pacific Ocean now constitute the biggest war front in the world conflict.

The largest expanses of open water in the world lie in the Pacific. Tiny dots of coral reef and sand assure strategic import out of all proportion to size and ocean vastness where solid ground is at a premium.

This is true because even the mightiest navy is dependent on shore establishments for refueling, supplies and refitting. Naval action in the Japanese-American war will be largely governed by the fortified stepping stones across the Pacific, the bases controlled by the opposing powers.

Every admiral knows that a capital ship sunk cannot be replaced for three or four years. A capital ship damaged in action, which makes haven at its base, can be ready for sea duty again in three or four months.

This impels fleet commanders to maneuver for decisive action as close as possible to home bases.

The Japanese have no bases in the eastern Pacific. The U.S. has its major bases on the continental coast plus Hawaii and the new Alaskan bases. It is unlikely the Japanese fleet commander would accept a full fleet action 3,000 miles off base and close to American bases.

The Japanese surprise attack on Pearl Harbor was in no sense a fleet action, but a daring thrust by carriers and light craft in a hit-and-run raid.

Japan's major bases are in the western Pacific. They give her naval dominance in the Sea of Japan, the Yellow Sea and the north tion of the China Sea. She has an important string of advance bases in the mandated islands.

somewhere between the areas of dominance created by the bases will be the site of any sea battle between the massed fleets.

Japan enjoys no monopoly of major bases in the western Pacific, as does the U.S. in the eastern half of the ocean. Singapore and Manila are vital bulwarks of the Allied fleets. It is significant that Japan directed opening attacks against these two naval strongholds.

Vladivostok is also of potential importance. Russia has not yet signified her part in the Pacific struggle. Vladivostok is a key point in the center of a ring drawn around the Japanese empire. It could be a potent factor in the war.

The Pacific war, judged by standards set up in the world's library of naval strategy, will probably resolve into major fleet maneuvers in the western theatre, between fleets based on Singapore and Manila and the Japanese fleet based on its home ports.

In addition, the huge area involved makes a repetition of surprise raids by both sides likely. With luck, light craft can approach an objective for hit-and-run action without detection, from vast areas hard to patrol adequately.

There's one factor, though, that runs against Japan. Even the defeat of the U.S. fleet would not guarantee a defeat of the U.S. as a nation.

Defeat of the Japanese fleet, carries the fate of the country with it. Japan is an island empire, utterly dependent on the sea routes for sustenance.

PENNSYLVANIA TO EXTEND AIR RAID WARNINGS

[By The Associated Press]

Pennsylvania air raid warning machinery was moved rapidly westward today as 15 additional central boxes were ordered set up to bring 40 of the state's 67 counties under the defense council's alarm system.

The state council was directed to proceed immediately with installation of air raid warning boxes in the 15 centers, to complete the coverage as far west as Altoona. They already are in position in 19 centers.

Within the next two weeks the system will be spread to the remaining western counties to complete the preparations for any air raids.

Jumps Draft Gun

The selective service headquarters reported that nearly a million Pennsylvanians were registered for possible military training before October 1, and that nearly 12,000 had jumped the draft gun and enlisted—before October 1. The number of enlistments since war was declared on the Axis was, of course, much higher.

The same headquarters called upon the local draft boards to furnish lists of registrants classed as 2-A and 2-B, those necessary in civilian activity and in national defense, respectively.

"We are checking to find out what the complex is in those two classifications. We know how many men there are in each but we want to know what kind of men," a spokesman explained.

To Get Furloughs

Holiday furloughs for the state's troops at the Indian town Gap military post will be granted as originally planned—50 per cent of the soldiers getting Christmas at home and the other 50 per cent off for New Year's.

The new centers where boxes were ordered installed, and the counties they will serve are:

Montrose, Susquehanna county; Towanda, Bradford and Sullivan counties; Wellsboro, Tioga county; Williamsport, Lycoming county; Bloomsburg, Columbia and Monroe counties; Sunbury, Northumberland, Union and Snyder counties; Lock Haven, Clinton county; Lewistown, Mifflin and Juniata counties; Bellefonte, Centre county; Clearfield, Clearfield county; Altoona, Blair county; Huntingdon, Huntingdon county; Carlisle, Cumberland county; Chambersburg, Franklin county; and Bedford, Fulton and Bedford counties.

BLACKOUT OF SAN FRANCISCO HUGE SUCCESS

San Francisco, Dec. 13 (AP)—San Francisco, undergoing its fourth blackout of the war last night in an air raid alert that lasted two hours and 34 minutes, proved to the Army that it knows how to turn out the lights.

A score of persons were injured, one man dropped dead, there was violence and property damage. Strange rumors were noised about. But the city was black.

It was such an improvement that Lieut. General John L. Dewitt, commander of the Fourth Army, who became bitterly angry over San Francisco's first bungling blackout attempt Monday, said he was "extremely pleased."

100 Mile Blackout

Blackness extended 100 miles eastward to Sacramento and was effective more than 50 miles southward past San Jose.

The only military announcement was one from Fourth Army headquarters saying that Army detectors had located unidentified planes flying over the area.

Accompanying the alert were many unofficial reports of planes heard flying over San Francisco.

Police who swarmed to investigate a report that lights were blazing from windows of a downtown building found the lights burning in offices used by the Fourth Interceptor command.

Many Are Injured

There was a rumor that flares were being tossed down from a balloon suspended over the Oakland foothills, and that "flick" anti-aircraft shell fragments, were peppering down around Fleishacker zoo at the ocean beach. These and many other reports proved false.

Scores of persons escaped injury when two street cars collided. Another street car slipped its brakes and ran wild but nobody was hurt.

A score of persons were injured in minor traffic accidents.

BLACKOUT IN JACKSONVILLE

Jacksonville, Fla., Dec. 13 (AP)—Army and Navy posts here were blacked out early today and all radio stations were ordered off the air from 5:30 a. m. to 7:15 a. m. (E.S.T.) after Naval Intelligence Commander R. M. Fortson reported "unidentified" planes off the southeastern coast.

Capt. C. P. Mason, commanding officer at the Naval air base, said he could not reveal the source of his information, but added "this is not a test blackout. This is serious—our war as we are concerned."

The big Naval air station on the St. John river was blacked out immediately as was the headquarters of the Army's Fourth Observation Group at the municipal airport.

Officers at the Navy station were routed out of bed and planes were warmed up on the runway but did not take off. No officer could be reached for a statement at the Fourth Army Corps headquarters.

The downtown area was not blacked out, but a heavy fog hung over the city, restricting visibility.

WAR VETERAN RETURNS GIFT

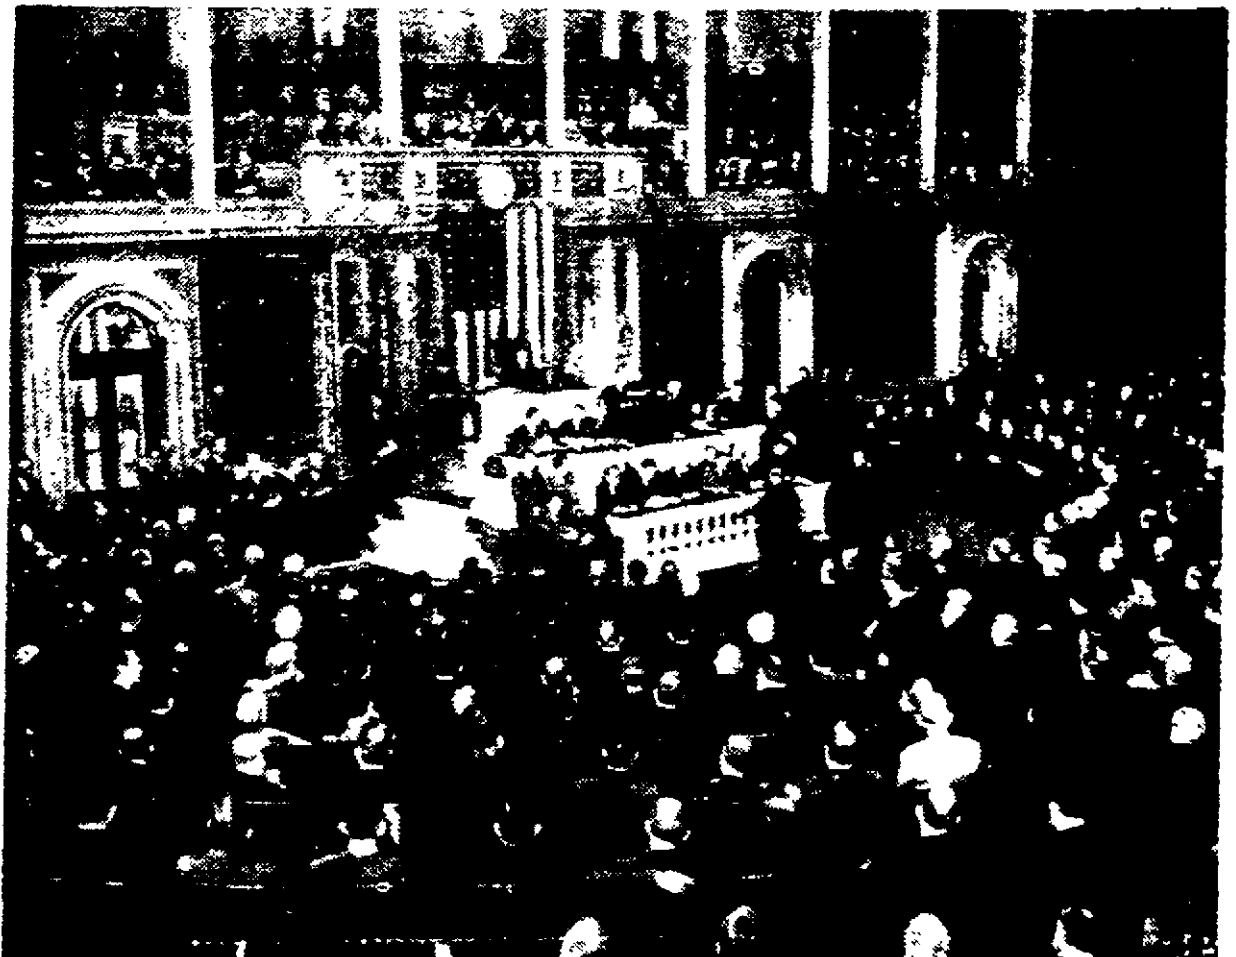

Washington, Dec. 13 (AP)—The medal which Rep. James E. Van Zandt, Altoona, Pa., Republican, received from Japan in 1936 was en route back to the Japanese officials today.

The former national commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars also announced he would report immediately for duty with the Atlantic fleet. He is a lieutenant in the Naval Reserve.

He headed a good-will delegation to Japan five years ago as head of the veterans organization and received from the Imperial Reservoirs Association of Japan a medal inscribed:

PROCRASTINATION
Poor old Father Time must smile
Every time he hears us say:
"Let that go a little while!
There's no time for that today."

Yet in every day of ours
There are four and twenty hours.
Father Time must shake his head,
Hearing mortals talk as though
Some tomorrow's day will spread
Wider than the one we know,
And some future hour will stay
Longer than the hours today.

Father Time has heard men plead
Many a pitiful report,
Telling for the gracious deed
Time allotted was too short:
When a longer day we know
We shall surely kinder grow.

Father Time must wonder when
All the old excuses stale
Will be dropped by mortal men
For the many times they fail.
Will they ever learn somehow
That the time to help is now?

KNOWLEDGE IN RESERVE
It is highly important never to neglect any opportunity to accumulate knowledge. You never know
when it is to come in handy and
be profitable—even though that profit may be merely a mental one.

I was interested in a statement that Somerset Maugham made
through his character Philip Carey
in his book "Of Human Bondage." It seems that Philip tried his hand at art in Paris during his strange career. He spent two years there in the Latin Quarter studying—but finally was convinced that he didn't have it in him to progress to any material advantage. So he gave it up.

Later he was accused of wasting
those two years—but he came right back with the statement that those years were not wasted. He had added to his enjoyment of beauty. Now he could see more than mere grass, hills and commonplace objects. He could see the values behind color, shadows, and arrangements. He saw beauty in a definite composition.
So nothing was lost to him.

In my early career I once sold type to newspapers through an advertising agency. I sold a lot of it,
but the job didn't appeal to me.
One day I complained to my chief
and he looked at me and said: "You can never know too much about type." I thought that over and I have never regretted selling type,
for to sell it I had to know all about it, all about the various type faces and fonts. That knowledge has been invaluable to me over the years.

I have used it in my business, and it has made me sensitive to all fine printing and beautifully printed books.

It was the knowledge that Daniel Webster had kept in reserve over the years, through what he had gained from work on an obscure case
which he tried without pay, that enabled him to win the famous Dartmouth case later in life and which raised him to the top among
the great lawyers of his day.

Emergencies are forever facing us.
We never know at what time they may appear. Knowledge in reserve is like physical strength in reserve
when attacked by illness. This stored-away knowledge may save the day for us. In addition, it will furnish many a lonely hour with food for thought.

Tomorrow Mr. Adams will talk on the subject: "One Friend."

Wednesday, although both had almost forgotten the occasion until reminded by a reporter for the Gettysburg Times.

Antagonism Among Officials Reported At White Hill

DISMISSAL OF
SOME HINTED
BY COMMITTEE

Harrisburg, Dec. 13 (AP)—A committee which investigated the administration of Pennsylvania's new $4,000,000 industrial school for boys
reported to Governor James there was antagonism among officials and a rebellious attitude on the part of one-third of the inmates.

The inquiry group, named by James at the request of Superintendent Henry C. Hill after the fatal shooting of an inmate attempting escape, recommended the age limit of 25 be reduced by the Legislature, and the older men sent to penitentiaries.

Friction Reported
The committee, headed by Judge
Fred S. Reese of Cumberland county, said antagonism existed between Major Hill and Captain of the Guards W. O. Harris, on one hand,
and Deputy Superintendent A. W.
Castle, on the other.

It recommended that "immediate steps should be taken to dissipate
the lack of cooperation and harmony and the spirit of disunity and antagonism which exists among the principal administrative officers."

"If it should be ultimately decided that such a drastic and serious step as dismissal should be necessary to effectuate this purpose,"
the committee suggested "such a step should be taken only after careful consideration of the possible effect of such a step upon the inmate population of this and other penal institutions."

The six-man committee asked
any authority beyond investigating.
It interviewed 77 witnesses, including 49 guards, and placed its findings
in a 29-page report to the Governor.

Chief among the committee's other recommendations were:

1. Increase the number of guards.
2. Strengthen the fence, over which four escapes were reported since the institution opened last March 15.

3. Leaders of the rebellious spirit of unrest and whose age and previous record justify it should be transferred to a penitentiary.

4. Various types of inmates should be segregated not only in housing, as at present, but in recreational activities, work details and in the dining room.

Vocational Training
5. Vocational training programs should be started, at least for repair of clothing and shoes, which would save the commonwealth considerable funds.

6. The deputy superintendent's duties are incompatible with his job as director of educational program, which also is incompatible with his function as permanent head of the disciplinary court.

The committee commented that some of the unrest was due to inferior appearances of Major Hill;
that the inmates who were "institution wise" took advantage of the inexperience of the custodial force;
that the boys took sides in the conflict between the administration chiefs, the unruly one-third with the deputy superintendent.

Castle, the deputy superintendent, formerly was chief of the extension division of the state Department of Public Instruction.

The committee found that insufficient watch had brought on the four breaks, and not mistreatment.

Women To Practice
Shooting Rifles

Pittsburgh, Dec. 13 (AP)—A group of Pittsburgh women announced today they would practice shooting rifles and small arms in case of an invasion by parachute troops.

Anne Dunseth, member of the Pittsburgh Defense Council and leader of the group, said they planned to organize on a statewide basis "women who can use firearms in case of necessity, such as has been done in England."

"There aren't so many of us now," she said, "but we expect to organize hundreds of women to be able to defend themselves, to protect their homes, to take care of enemy parachute troops and things like that."

Lieut. Col. William J. Jones, in

AID FOR THE ARMY
Richmond, Va. (AP)—Detective
Captain O. D. Garton was looking today for an inexpensive little camera that may have a lot to do with the happiness of a part of the Army.

A soldier wrote that he left it on the curb after directing a convoy through the city December 4 and that he soon was to see his girl—who gave it to him.

"How's chances of helping a buddy escape this impending Waterloo?" he wrote.

MILITARY POWER
Boston (AP)—A youthful "walking arsenal" is in police custody.
Police said the boy, 12 years old,
was captured last night fleeing from an attempted hold-up and that he possessed five automatic pistols, a revolver and six packages of shells.

CRANBERRY MERCHANT?
Salina, Kas. (AP)—A one-armed paper hanger isn't any busier than a two-armed paperhanger. R. E.
Roach says so.

"In fact," says he, "another arm would just clutter up my affairs.
All there is to paperhanging is to get the first strip on straight.
After that it's easy. One arm or two."

Roach is a one-armed paperhanger.

FURTY PLEETH!
Fort Riley, Kas.—A frantic customer who shouted "Please don't wash my teeth" over the telephone had the laundry in an uproar for a while. Then they found em—Paul Cullimore's store - bought choppers. He'd left them in the pocket of a jacket in the weeks

IT WORKS LIKE THIS
Kansas City (AP)—William Gillespie was learning about tear gas guns at a know-your-city show which included a Police department exhibit.

The parolman - demonstrator brandished the weapon realistically and it went off, the small exploding on the floor.

Hospital attendants assured citizen Gillespie he'd be all right after a good cry.

SALES TALK
Milwaukee—Mayor Carl Zeidler believes city employees should have shoes shined, trousers pressed, be erect of carriage and act purposefully before taxpayers.

"Government must be sold to the public," he says. "What is needed is eye-appeal. . . . No one can see a city government but people easily may observe city employees."

SPECIAL WORD
Chicago (AP)—Members of the city council finance committee were stumped when they came across a pay roll item—"otominolaryngologist"—21 letters long. So they called in Dr. Herman N. Bundeson, board of health president.

"Why that is 'oto-rhino-laryn-gologist.'" Bundeson enunciated,
"and it means, eye, ear, nose, and throat specialist—to you."

Defense Insignias
For Motor Trucks
Are Now Available

To match the olive drab that distinguishes the thousands of motor trucks serving the modern streamlined divisions of the U. S. Army, a distinguishing insignia has now been made available for the other thousands of trucks in civilian use that have the equally important role of serving the nation by hauling the ever-increasing volume of defense materials.

In the form of a shield in a bright, patriotic red, white and blue color combination, the new emblem, being furnished by Dodge dealers for use on motor trucks in defense work, proclaims in large letters that "This Truck Hauls Defense Materials."

Chief purpose of the placards is to impress upon the public generally the important role played by motor trucks in defense preparation and the extent to which the nation depends today upon this vital arm of transportation.

PROCRASTINATION
Poor old Father Time must smile
Every time he hears us say:
"Let that go a little while!"
There's no time for that today."Yet in every day of ours
There are four and twenty hours.Father Time must shake his head,
Hearing mortals talk as though
Some tomorrow's day will spread
Wider than the one we know,
And some future hour will stay
Longer than the hours today.Father Time has heard men plead
Many a pitiful report,
Telling for the gracious deed
Time allotted was too short:
When a longer day we know
We shall surely kinder grow.Father Time must wonder when
All the old excuses stale
Will be dropped by mortal men
For the many times they fail.
Will they ever learn somehow
That the time to help is now?

KNOWLEDGE IN RESERVE

It is highly important never to
neglect any opportunity to accumulate knowledge. You never know
when it is to come in handy and
be profitable—even though that profit may be merely a mental one.I was interested in a statement that Somerset Maugham made
through his character Philip Carey
in his book "Of Human Bondage." It seems that Philip tried his hand at
art in Paris during his strange career. He spent two years there in the Latin Quarter studying—but
finally was convinced that he didn't have it in him to progress to any material advantage. So he gave it up.
Later he was accused of wasting
those two years—but he came right
back with the statement that those years were not wasted. He had added
to his enjoyment of beauty. Now he could see more than mere grass,
hills and commonplace objects. He could see the values behind color,
shadows, and arrangements. He saw beauty in a definite composition. So nothing was lost to him.In my early career I once sold type to newspapers through an advertising agency. I sold a lot of it,
but the job didn't appeal to me.
One day I complained to my chief
and he looked at me and said: "You
can never know too much about
type." I thought that over and I have never regretted selling type,
for to sell it I had to know all about
it, all about the various type faces
and fonts. That knowledge has been invaluable to me over the years.
I have used it in my business, and
it has made me sensitive to all fine
printing and beautifully printed books.It was the knowledge that Daniel Webster had kept in reserve over
the years, through what he had gained from work on an obscure case
which he tried without pay, that
enabled him to win the famous Dartmouth case later in life and
which raised him to the top among
the great lawyers of his day.
Emergencies are forever facing us.
We never know at what time they may appear. Knowledge in reserve is like physical strength in reserve
when attacked by illness. This stored-away knowledge may save the
day for us. In addition, it will furnish many a lonely hour with food for thought.Tomorrow Mr. Adams will talk on the subject: "One Friend."Crowded House Greets Comedy

the Y. W. C. A.The comedy was capably handled by Miss Elizabeth Stallsmith and Fred G. Pfeiffer, G. Neville Waters and Ray Jones also supplied some already mentioned, others taking

bert, William Mickle, Raymond

liams, Jacob Appeler and Lester Uiz.Birth Announcements: Mr. and day.John D. Keith, Carlisle street, was among the guests at the Gridiron club dinner at the Willard hotel on Saturday evening.Mrs. Caroline Weigle, York street, visit of six months at her former home in Norway.

Antagonism Among Officials Reported At White Hill

DISMISSAL OF
SOME HINTED
BY COMMITTEEHarrisburg, Dec. 13 (AP)—A committee which investigated the administration of Pennsylvania's new $4,000,000 industrial school for boys
reported to Governor James there
was antagonism among officials and
a rebellious attitude on the part of one-third of the inmates.The inquiry group, named by James at the request of Superintendent Henry C. Hill after the fatal shooting of an inmate attempting escape, recommended the
age limit of 25 be reduced by the Legislature, and the older men sent to penitentiaries.Friction Reported
The committee, headed by Judge
Fred S. Reese of Cumberland county, said antagonism existed between
Major Hill and Captain of the Guards W. O. Harris, on one hand,
and Deputy Superintendent A. W.
Castle, on the other.It recommended that "immediate steps should be taken to dissipate
the lack of cooperation and harmony and the spirit of disunity and antagonism which exists among the principal administrative officers.""If it should be ultimately decided that such a drastic and serious step as dismissal should be necessary to effectuate this purpose,"
the committee suggested "such a
step should be taken only after
careful consideration of the possible
effect of such a step upon the inmate population of this and other penal institutions."The six-man committee lacked
any authority beyond investigating.
It interviewed 77 witnesses, including 49 guards, and placed its findings in a 29-page report to the Governor.Chief among the committee's other recommendations were:

1. Increase the number of guards.
2. Strengthen the fence, over
which four escapes were reported
since the institution opened last
March 15.
3. Leaders of the rebellious spirit of unrest and whose age and previous record justify it should be transferred to a penitentiary.
4. Various types of inmates should

June 3, 1707—baptized June 15, 1707
at Hackensack, New Jersey. Mar-

This man was a brother of her sis-

Chicago (AP)—Members of the

THE PHONE BOOTH MURDER

by Phoebe Atwood Taylor

Chapter 23

Hunt for Miss Olive

"You mean," Cummings said again, as if he couldn't quite grasp the situation, "that the three of you were there in that room all the time? Every minute?"

"If you want proof," Freddy said, "I can tell you the plot of every soap serial from three o'clock on."

"Sounds like quite an afternoon," Asey commented.

"It was. Someday I hope to find out," Freddy said, "why people who get bored on dull days in a hotel do such utterly bizarre things. Anyway, I finally quelled them by getting them an early tea—now there's another peculiar thing I forgot to tell Mother about. Miss Olive came in about a quarter past four, and she wouldn't stop for a cup of tea! And she always does! But today she said no, and went right up to her room, and then she came down in about fifteen minutes, and—that was when she told me she was dining out, by the way—got into her car and drove off."

"Freddy, you disappoint me," Cummings said. "You mean that Rankin was really around all afternoon? Didn't he make any phone calls? Didn't he go near that booth?"

"No. Lady Boop did, and so did I, but—"

"I must confess I'm disappointed!" Cummings said. "Rankin was really here, under your eyes, all the time?"

"Well, he did walk up to the main street with Dad," Freddy said. "About the time Miss Olive left, they went to Tony's for their afternoon beer—they often do if Rankin's here. Then they rushed back for the broadcast at quarter to five. That's why this's so muddled—we were all here! We all listened. Mother, Dad, Lady Boop, Rankin and I. And Mamie Riggs. She'd been in the dining room, washing the wainscoting—"

"Was she there all afternoon?" Asey interrupted.

"All day, and she'll be there all day tomorrow," Freddy said. "Did you ever wash carved wainscoting? It's a hellish job."

"Uh-huh, Jennie an' Syl an' I do mine every year. Freddy, was 'the dinin' room doors open or closed?"

"Open. I suggested Mamie close 'em, but she said she guessed she'd listen to the radio. I should have been firm and made her shut 'em. Mother would have. But it's dull work washing paint, and I never thought till later how Lady Boop and Rankin must have sounded to her. Anyway, we all listened. Then Judge Houghton came for Rankin, and Lady Boop bounced off in a huff to the club when Mother insisted she might not have claims for dinner. People were there in the living room all the time! So this must have happened in those few minutes before six, from the time the lights went out, and Dad and I went to get the lights working, till Asey and Mrs. Mayo came with the claims."

"Did you ever get them lights workin'?" Asey asked. "I wondered."

No, the regular current came back before we got anywhere. Frankly," Freddy said, "Dad and I are not good mechanics. Neither of us ever understood that machine. But, you see, the stoves are electric, so Dad was stymied—"

No Miss Olive

"Humpf!" Cummings said. "I wonder if her watch was right?"

"Mine?" Freddy asked. "It usually is."

"Ann Joyce's," Cummings explained. "It was stopped at seven of six. I didn't pay any attention to it, because I'm opposed to the theory that someone died at the exact time their watch stopped. Humpf! I guess I'll have to take it all back, Asey. I thought I had this figured out."

"You better turn your mind," Asey said thoughtfully, "to other channels. Huh. I had a solution, myself, but that ain't goin' to work. Not if Mamie was washin' paint in the dinin' room."

"What are you talkin' about?"

"Ann Joyce, Freddy," Asey said, "phone around all the places you can think of an' see if you can't locate Miss Olive. We ain't got much of a basis to start from till we can talk with her an' get things settled."

He was discussing the wound with Hanson and Cummings when Freddy returned some twenty minutes later.

"Located her?" he inquired.

"No one's seen her!" Freddy said. "She wasn't at the movies, and she hasn't been to Johnson's, she hasn't called on any of the people she ordinarily calls on, and no one has any idea where she might be! And there's nothing going on in town at any of the churches, or the Women's Club, or the War Relief or the Red Cross! Truly, Mother and I are terribly worried! What could have happened to her?"

"Huh!" Asey said. "Happen to know her license number?"

"Her car's a sedan, but I don't know what the number is! Maybe Mother might."

Characteristically, Mrs. Doane had the license number of the tip of her tongue.

"Fine," Asey said. "I'll cruise around an' see if I can't find her. May be that she had a flat, or engine trouble, an' is waitin' for the rain to let up before she sets out to phone for help. That's probably the answer. Oh, Doc." He paused at the front door and beckoned to Cummings. "Doc, keep your eye on Jennie. An' see if you can't do some drivin' into this time problem. So long."

He found his own Porter roadster where Sam had left it on the corner where he had previously parked Syl's truck.

A little wearily, he got in and started off in search of Miss Olive. Two hours later, having covered all the roads he could think of, and having made a canvass of all the garages within a radius of thirty miles, he turned back to Quisset.

At Joe's gas station at the four corners he stopped on impulse, introduced himself to the attendant who was just closing up the place for the night, and asked if Mrs. Doane had been there for gas around six.

"Sure. She was here from just before the lights went till the current came back. All the time. I told that state trooper so."

"Another thing, you seen Miss Olive tonight?" Asey asked.

"She was here this morning for her weekly checkup," the man said. "I told Freddy Doane so when she called up a little while ago."

Lady Boop

Asey frowned as he drove on to the Inn.

This business, he thought, got more and more like a Chinese puzzle. Was it the real Miss Olive who refused tea and drove off from the Inn that afternoon, or was it the girl Ann Joyce, dressed like her? Was it the real Miss Olive or Anne Joyce whom he and Jennie saw?

And if no one knew that the girl was dressed up like Miss Olive, was it possible that someone had meant to shoot Miss Olive, and got the girl instead?

And, if that was the case, had someone realized their mistake, and since gone after Miss Olive and carried out their original intention of killing her?

It almost began, Asey thought, to look that way.

The Inn driveway seemed filled with cars, so he stopped his roadster a little beyond, got out, and walked through the wet grass toward the Inn.

Just as he stepped on the gravel to cross the driveway between two parked cars, he saw someone duck into the bushes by the protochere. Asey stood stock-still and watched with interest as the broad figure of Mrs. Clutterfield slowly emerged.

Apparently the lack of any further scrunching of gravel reassured her that she was unobserved, for after listening a moment she tiptoed to the side of the Inn and peeked up into a window.

Then she peeked into another. And still another.

Keeping at a safe distance, Asey quietly followed her on her circuit of the Inn.

Certainly, he thought, not even Dr. Cummings with his love of jumping to conclusions could ever make the error of mistaking Lady Boop for a gnome!

Asey walked softly over to her and touched her shoulder as she started her second circuit.

"Ooooh!"

"What," Asey inquired, "do you think you're doing? What's the idea of all this reconnoiterin'?"

"Ooooh!"

"Why are you—say, can't you do anything but squeal?"

When it became apparent that Lady Boop couldn't answer his questions in any other manner, Asey took her firmly by the arm and led her indoors to the living room.

Cummings stared at him in amazement as he entered.

"For heaven's sakes, Asey, what's that you've got on your arm? Who's she?"

"Meet Mrs. Clutterfield, Doc. It don't hardly seem possible, but there's indications that she might maybe have been our Peepin' Tom."

"Well, she is not!" Cummings said. "One of Hanson's troopers picked him up twenty minutes ago. It was your dear friend Rankin!"

"Ooooh!" Mrs. Clutterfield said. "Policemen! Ooooh! Ooooh! Ooooh!"

"What's the matter with her?" Cummings demanded. "She's in pain?"

"I think she's just frightened," Asey said. "What do you mean, a trooper picked up Rankin?"

"She sounds," Cummings said,

Japs Claim Sinking Of U.S.S. Arizona

Tokyo, Dec. 13.—(Official Radio Received by AP).—The Japanese raised to three their claims of United States battleships sunk in the initial aerial onslaught on Hawaii last Sunday, adding today the U. S. S. Arizona to the previously claimed battleships Oklahoma and West Virginia.

The naval section of Imperial headquarters said the sinking of the Arizona "is now confirmed."

(How this was "confirmed," the communique did not say and there was no verification of the Japanese assertion in any other quarter.

(It has been an Axis technique to make spectacular war claims, especially naval, in hope of learning the true result of attacks from its adversaries' denials.

(The United States has acknowledged that one battleship capsized, and a destroyer was blown up in the enemy attack on Pearl Harbor Dec. 8).

"like a baby I once saw who'd swallowed a tin whistle. Rankin was peering into windows. Asey. Claims he'd seen someone out there and was trying to catch him—"

Freddy came into the living room. "Did you find Miss Olive? Oh dear, you didn't! This is simply getting worse and worse! Did you tell him about the call, Doctor?"

"No, I was just getting to that," Cummings said. "What do you know Asey, a man phoned a few minutes ago and said not to expect her back!"

RING TIGHTENS ABOUT AXIS IN DESERT BATTLE

Cairo, Egypt, Dec. 13 (AP)—British forces west of Tobruk are attacking the encircled Axis troops at Gazala, the British headquarters declared today.

A communique said that New Zealand forces, reported yesterday to have driven west from their base at Tobruk, had cut off Gazala.

It declared that other British mobile columns well to the west were causing widespread confusion and destruction among scattered Axis units attempting to break through toward Derna and Bengasi.

"Our main forces," the communique declared, "continue their advance west and northwest from the area south of Gazala."

Axis casualties in the battle for Gazala and fighting southwest of there were placed at 3,000—half of that number killed and the rest wounded.

Mop-Up Actions

Meanwhile, the War bulletin reported, South African forces have mopped up "three defended localities held by the enemy southwest of Salum."

These forces, apparently freed for action by the clean-up in Ethiopia, are being thrown into the action in the Egyptian-Libyan frontier area against Axis forces isolated by the British drive past their positions and deep into Libya.

Military sources said German General Erwin Rommel was believed to be withdrawing in the hope of solidifying a new defense line—possibly in the vicinity of Derna, next big stop west of Gazala.

THE PHONE BOOTH MURDER

Chapter 23

Hunt for Miss Olive

"You mean," Cummings said again, as if he couldn't quite grasp the situation, "that the three of you were there in that room all the time? Every minute?"

"If you want proof," Freddy said, "I can tell you the plot of every soap serial from three o'clock on."

"Sounds like quite an afternoon," Asey commented.

"It was. Someday I hope to find out," Freddy said, "why people who get bored on dull days in a hotel do such utterly bizarre things. Anyway, I finally quelled them by getting them an early tea—now there's another peculiar thing I forgot to tell Mother about. Miss Olive came in about a quarter past four, and she wouldn't stop for a cup of tea! And she always does! But today she said no, and went right up to her room, and then she came down in about fifteen minutes, and—that was when she told me she was dining out, by the way—got into her car and drove off."

"Freddy, you disappoint me," Cummings said. "You mean that Rankin was really around all afternoon? Didn't he make any phone calls? Didn't he go near that booth?"

"No. Lady Boop did, and so did I, but—"

"I must confess I'm disappointed," Cummings said. "Rankin was really here, under your eyes, all the time?"

"Well, he did walk up to the main street with Dad," Freddy said. "About the time Miss Olive left, they went to Tony's for the afternoon beer—they often do if Rankin's here. Then they rushed back for the broadcast at quarter to five. That's why this's so muddled—we were all here! We all listened. Mother, Dad, Lady Boop, Rankin, and I. And Mamie Riggs. She'd been in the dining room, washing the wainscoting—"

"Was she there all afternoon?" Asey interrupted.

"All day, and she'll be there all day tomorrow," Freddy said. "Did you ever wash carved wainscoting? It's a hellish job."

"Uh-huh, Jennie an' Syl an' I do mine every year. Freddy, was the dinin' room doors open or closed?"

"Open. I suggested Mamie close 'em, but she said she guessed she'd listen to the radio. I should have been firm and made her shut 'em. Mother would have. But it's dull work washing paint, and I never thought till later how Lady Boop and Rankin must have sounded to her. Anyway, we all listened. Then Judge Houghton came for Rankin, and Lady Boop bounced off in a huff to the club when Mother insisted she might not have claims for dinner. People were there in the living room all the time! So this must have happened in those few minutes before six, from the time the lights went out, and Dad and I went to get the lights working, till Asey and Mrs. Mayo came with the claims."

"Did you ever get them lights working?" Asey asked. "I wondered."

No, the regular current came back before we got anywhere. Frankly," Freddy said, "Dad and I are not good mechanics. Neither of us ever understood that machine. But, you see, the stoves are electric, so Dad was stymied—"

No Miss Olive

"Humpf!" Cummings said. "I wonder if her watch was right?"

"Mine?" Freddy asked. "It usually is."

"Ann Joyce's," Cummings explained. "It was stopped at seven o'clock. I didn't pay any attention to it, because I'm opposed to the theory that someone died at the exact time their watch stopped. Humpf! I guess I'll have to take it all back, Asey. I thought I had this figured out."

"You better turn your mind," Asey said thoughtfully, "to other channels. Huh. I had a solution, myself, but that ain't goin' to work. Not if Mamie was washin' paint in the dinin' room."

"What are you talkin' about?" "Ann Joyce. Freddy," Asey said, "phone around all the places you can think of an' see if you can't locate Miss Olive. We ain't got much of a basis to start from till we can talk with her an' get things settled."

He was discussing the wound with Hanson and Cummings when Freddy returned some twenty minutes later.

"Located her?" he inquired.

"No one's seen her!" Freddy said. "She wasn't at the movies, and she hasn't been to Johnson's, she hasn't called on any of the people she ordinarily calls on, and no one has any idea where she might be! And there's nothing going on in town at any of the churches, or the Women's Club, or the War Relief or the Red Cross. Truly, Mother and I are terribly worried! What could have happened to her?"

"Huh!" Asey said. "Happen to know her license number?"

"Her car's a sedan, but I don't know what the number is! Maybe Mother might."

Characteristically, Mrs. Doane had the license number of the tip of her tongue.

"Fine," Asey said. "I'll cruise around an' see if I can't find her. May be that she had a flat, or engine trouble, an' is waitin' for the rain to let up before she sets out to phone for help. That's probably the answer. Oh, Doc. He paused at the front door and beckoned to Cummings. "Doc, keep your eye on Jennie. An' see if you can't do some drivin' into this time problem. So long."

He found his own Porter roadster where Sam had left it on the corner where he had previously parked Syl's truck.

A little wearily, he got in and started off in search of Miss Olive. Two hours later, having covered all the roads he could think of, and having made a canvass of all the garages within a radius of thirty miles, he turned back to Quisset.

At Joe's gas station at the four corners he stopped on impulse, introduced himself to the attendant who was just closing up the place for the night, and asked if Mrs. Doane had been there for gas around six.

"Sure. She was here from just before the lights went till the current came back. All the time. I told that state trooper so."

"Another thing, you seen Miss Olive tonight?" Asey asked.

"She was here this morning for her weekly checkup," the man said. "I told Freddy Doane so when she called up a little while ago."

Snead Attempting To Overhaul Ben Hogan
Miami, Fla., Dec. 13 (AP)—Harassed by an uncertain putter, long-driving Sammy Snead set out today to get back the three strokes separating him from little Ben Hogan, of Hershey, Pa., at the half-way mark in the $10,000 72-hole open.

"These putts just wouldn't drop," said Snead, plainly despondent despite a second fine 68 that left him with 136 to Hogan's two-round score of 133.

Eight times those first putting attempts would have meant birdies had they been successful, and the ninth time he was playing for an eagle. As it was he wound up with a 34, one under par.

Santa And The White Rose

THE STORY SO FAR: Princess Hildur has given her first wish after she was 21 to a witch. She had promised the wish to the witch when she was a child.

Chapter Twelve
THE KING LAYS WASTE TO WINDOM'S CROPS
That night the Princess Hildur fell into troubled dreams. She hadn't slept an hour when she woke with a start because there was a sharp, rustling noise outside her window.

She jumped up, lit a candle, and ran to the window. There she saw a great oak tree, the leaves dropping from it. She stepped out on the balcony, looked down, and there stood the first witch with her hand on the tree trunk. The tree was dead.

The witch cackled, bent down and touched a rose bush which immediately dropped its leaves. The witch looked up at Hildur and grinned.

"Oh, please don't do that," said Hildur.

"I can't help it," said the witch. "That's the way I am and I like it." The witch touched a white lily and it turned black. Then she disappeared.

Hildur ran quickly down the hall to her parents' room and told them the story. The King looked quite distressed. He hurried down to the great hall shouting, "Men, there is an old woman in black in the castle gardens. Catch her immediately."

The guardsmen drew their swords and ran in all directions through the gardens. But they didn't find the witch. Instead they found a black trail of dead bushes and trees. So they quickly mounted their horses and rode after her down the black trail she had left. She flew too fast for them.

When dawn came there was a great fright through the whole kingdom because she had slipped across almost every hill and farm and left a path of dead black crops.

The King called in all his wise men and they advised him to send out riders through the whole kingdom to ask for help. That day the King's soldiers were galloping along the roads and into the nearby kingdom to rally the young and the brave.

Two suns rose and sank before one such rider arrived in the neighboring kingdom at the castle of King Harald where Carl was now a captain of the King's guard.

Carl stood beside the throne and listened with glistering eyes. As soon as the messenger had stopped speaking Carl bowed to the King and said, "Sire, let me go. I can find that witch."

King Harald sighed and looked affectionately at Carl. He said, "Son, go. But give heed to your safety." Carl was given the finest black horse in the King's stables. The warmest fur jacket in the King's wardrobe, and he took along those precious arrows with the eagle's feathers. He has kept them safely all the years since the tournament.

As this was happening there was a great stir in Santa's Toyland. Santa was sitting that day beside a window carving tiny rose-buds on a doll's bed. Mrs. Santa sat beside him embroidering roses on the little white sheets which would go on the bed.

Santa stopped to light his pipe and to look out at the sun glistening on the snow. As he did so he exclaimed, "Ho! Mrs. Santa, look!" She peered out at the snow, and said, "What! Where?"

"No, here," said Santa. He pointed at the green vine which grew around the window. It was the magic vine he had planted years before. It was covered suddenly with big red flowers. "That's the lad," said Santa. "Carl. He's up to something important. Mrs. Santa, I must find out what's happening to him. Call my reindeer."

In half an hour Santa was flying through the air in his sleigh.

MONDAY AND TUESDAY
The "escape" from the turmoil of present-day problems to realms of romance and music, which is an important need of audiences today, is answered in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Smilin' Through," the M-G-M film opening Monday at the Majestic theatre, starring Jeanette MacDonald and Brian Aherne, with Gene Raymond.

Filmed in technicolor and replete with some of the most delightful music ever to reach the screen, sung by Miss MacDonald, "Smilin' Through" presents the star in the dual part of the old-fashioned heroine, Mooneyan, and her modern niece, Kathleen. It is the death of Mooneyan on her wedding day to Aherne, who enacts the role of Sir John Carteret, which forms the basis of the story of a love that endured fifty years and conquered death.

WEDNESDAY AND THURSDAY
Laughs aplenty are furnished in M-G-M's "The Feminine Touch," starring Rosalind Russell and Don Ameche, which plays at the Majestic Wednesday and Thursday. The story concerns that of a husband (Ameche) who refuses to show jealousy. Miss Russell, the wife, takes things into her own hands when the family's best girl friend, Kay Francis, makes passes at her husband. Van Heften and Donald Meek round out a superb cast.

FRIDAY AND SATURDAY
All the charm and quaintness of the early 1900's is captured in the enchanting film, "One Foot In Heaven," which Warner Bros. will show at the Majestic theatre next Friday for its initial showing. The story of a struggling minister and his typical American family is told with a grand mixture of drama and humor.

The outwardly stern, but inwardly sympathetic minister is played by Fredric March and his encouraging, understanding wife is portrayed by Martha Scott. The brilliant supporting cast is made up of such Hollywood favorites as Beulah Bondi, Gene Lockhart, Laura Hope Crews, Harry Davenport, Grant Mitchell, Elisabeth Fraser, Frankie Thomas, Moroni Olsen, Vera Lewis, Jerome Cowan, Ernest Cossart, Nana Bryant and many other well-known players.

Snead Attempting To Overhaul Ben Hogan

Miami, Fla., Dec. 13 (AP)—Harassed by an uncertain putter, long-driving Sammy Snead set out today to get back the three strokes separating him from little Ben Hogan, of Hershey, Pa., at the half-way mark in the $10,000 72-hole open.

"These putts just wouldn't drop," said Snead, plainly despondent despite a second fine 68 that left him with 136 to Hogan's two-round score of 133.

Eight times those first putting attempts would have meant birdies had they been successful, and the ninth time he was playing for an eagle. As it was he wound up with a 34, one under par.

"I can't help it," said the witch. "That's the way I am and I like it." The witch touched a white lily and it turned black. Then she disappeared.

Hildur ran quickly down the hall to her parents' room and told them the story. The King looked quite distressed. He hurried down to the great hall shouting, "Men, there is an old woman in black in the castle gardens. Catch her immediately."

The guardsmen drew their swords and ran in all directions through the gardens. But they didn't find the witch. Instead they found a black trail of dead bushes and trees. So they quickly mounted their horses and rode after her down the black trail she had left. She flew too fast for them.
